SaloneWorks

Sierra Leone → West Africa | Early-stage

Transforming how Africans find jobs and how companies hire talent.

Across Africa, talented people struggle to find legitimate jobs. Openings are scattered across company websites, social media, recruitment agencies and informal networks, while employers struggle to find qualified candidates efficiently. SaloneWorks is being built to solve both sides, starting in Sierra Leone.

For job seekers

Free | Search | Apply

Job discovery stays free. Search and filter by sector, job type and location, then apply in one place.

For employers

One platform | Post jobs | Find talent

Post jobs directly, search for qualified talent, manage applications and streamline hiring.

On the roadmap: AI

Planned | Matching

Discover and organize opportunities, remove duplicate and outdated listings, and match candidates by skills and experience.

WHERE WE ARE TODAY

A working prototype you can try right now at lukeagbetu.com/pitch: job search with filters, employer job posting with review before listings go live, candidate applications, and employer talent search.

Next: employer and candidate accounts, an admin review screen, pilot employers in Freetown, then AI-assisted matching.

Business model

Employer subscriptions, recruitment services, premium hiring tools and enterprise partnerships, while essential job discovery stays free for candidates.

Where we're going

A trusted digital recruitment ecosystem in Sierra Leone, then West Africa and the continent: the infrastructure for employment discovery and recruitment in Africa.

We're looking for early-stage investors and strategic partners who share this vision.
